

Brandon Wentworth | ASSOCIATE

Brandon Wentworth joined the Dallas office of Fletcher Farley Shipman & Salinas as an associate in 2015. He previously practiced at a civil defense firm in Houston, handling a diverse array of litigation matters. Brandon's experience includes commercial litigation, personal injury, professional liability, products liability, breach of contract claims, and commercial landlord-tenant matters.

Brandon focuses his practice on construction litigation, commercial litigation and personal injury defense, and he prides himself on his ability to rigorously develop the comprehensive technical defenses which complex cases demand. His clients have included construction companies, product manufacturers, oilfield contractors, homeowner's associations and a variety of other businesses.

Brandon received his Juris Doctor from Tulane University Law School in New Orleans, Louisiana and his Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and History from Auburn University in Alabama.
